How does metered propane service work?

With Volunteer Energy Propane's metered propane service, you never pay to fill your tank. Volunteer Energy Propane fills your tank and you pay monthly for the propane you use, similar to your electric or water bills. The tank is metered and read once a month and you receive a monthly bill.

Why offer metered propane?

VEC offers this service to help customers more easily budget their energy costs. With metered propane customers avoid the high initial cost of filling propane tanks.

Who qualifies for this service?

Customers who receive their electric power from Volunteer Energy Cooperative in Meigs, McMinn, Roane, Rhea, Bradley or Hamilton counties can take advantage of the metered propane service. Propane meters are read via VEC's automated metering system that is connected to our electric service grid; therefore, metered propane cannot be offered to persons who are not VEC customers.

What is my initial cost?

Initially, for above-ground service the customers pay a tank set fee. If the customer electric account is in good standing no deposit will be required.

Are there fees to fill the tank?

There are no fill fees; customers only pay a monthly billing for the propane that they use.

Is bulk propane available?

Bulk propane is not currently available.

What about customer-owned and underground tanks?

We can service your needs for these types of services; however, additional fees will apply.

What if I need service or have a propane emergency?

VE Propane customers can call their local VEC office for service or in an emergency, day or night. After-hours service calls are subject to per-hour charges.

How do I obtain service?

Stop by your local VEC office and complete the application paperwork.
